The Vietnamese government actively encourages foreign direct investment (FDI), relaxing regulations and offering various incentives to attract international capital. This includes streamlining investment procedures, reducing bureaucratic hurdles, and expanding sectors open to foreign investment. For instance, recent reforms have made it easier for foreign companies to establish wholly-owned enterprises (WOEs) in previously restricted industries. However, navigating the complexities of these regulations still requires careful attention to detail and expert legal counsel. Understanding the specific requirements for different investment types and sectors remains critical. The continuous updates and revisions to Vietnamese investment law necessitate ongoing monitoring of legal changes.

The development of robust and internationally recognized commercial dispute resolution mechanisms is a cornerstone of Vietnamese legal reform.
